1           I. INTRODUCTION

2           American consumers purchased over 900,000 Hyundai and Kia vehicles
3 over a three-year period based on the companies’ admittedly false representations 4 about their cars’ fuel economy. The settlement presented to this Court for 5 preliminary approval last December was the product of a highly unusual process
6 and fails to provide the justice these consumers deserve from the class action
7 system. The facts and circumstances of this case – defendants that concede uniform
8 liability to the class and ongoing governmental investigations – dictate that a direct 9 payment to harmed consumers, unburdened by a claim form, is the only just result.

10           The Proposed Settlement contains numerous terms that the courts and 11 independent commentators such as the National Consumer Law Center (NCLC)
12 and the National Association of Consumer Advocates (NACA) consider “red flags” 13 that warrant rejection under the specific circumstances here:

- 14           ➤ Unreadable and convoluted notice. A nearly illegible postcard is the 15 sole manner in which Class Members will receive direct notice of 16 their rights under the Proposed Settlement – virtually guaranteeing 17 that most Class Members will never exercise their rights, even as they 18 will be held to have released their claims.
- 19           ➤ Unnecessary and onerous claims process. Class Members must 20 comply with a completely unnecessary, confusing and onerous mail 21 and online claims process that will indisputably discourage many 22 Class Members from pursuing their rights under the Proposed 23 Settlement.
- 24           ➤ Defendants administer the settlement. Hyundai and Kia are 25 responsible for processing Class Members’ claims against them – a 26 straightforward conflict of interest that incentivizes errors and 27 improper denials of claims by the very same companies that engaged 28 in the misrepresentations to begin with.

And the clincher:

- Reversionary settlement. Hyundai and Kia – the wrongdoers – get to keep all the money that consumers do not claim or use.

Here’s the Settling Parties’ formula for the Proposed Settlement:

Unreadable Notice +
Onerous Claims Process +
Defendants Administer Claims +
Reversionary Settlement =
Limited Compensation for Class, Windfall For Defendants

The Proposed Settlement fails the “fair, adequate and reasonable” test, especially as it has been applied – with increasing sensitivity – by courts in the Ninth Circuit and elsewhere. If approved, it would erode public confidence in a crucial device for redressing corporate wrongdoing. (By contrast, the modifications proposed in the Conclusion of this brief would transform the Proposed Settlement from an illusory one to one that truly provides benefits to all Class Members.) Therefore, we respectfully urge the Court to reject the Proposed Settlement.

II. BACKGROUND

A. Genesis of the Litigation.

This litigation began with an investigation by Consumer Watchdog, a non-profit charitable organization, into numerous fuel economy complaints it received from consumers about the 2011 and 2012 Hyundai Elantra. (See Krauth Complaint at ¶ 29; Hasper Complaint at ¶ 65.) In response to these complaints, on November 30, 2011, Consumer Watchdog sent a letter to the EPA requesting “that the EPA re-test the 2011 and 2012 Elantra model in its own facility, to seek an explanation for the MPG disappointments of so many Elantra buyers....” (Id.) Consumer Watchdog subsequently sent letters to Hyundai Motor America (December 2011), President Obama and the EPA Administrator (January 2012), Hyundai Motor America’s CEO at the time, John Krafcik, and Hyundai Motor Company (Hyundai and Kia’s parent company, located in South Korea) CEO, Eok Jo Kim (February 2012) questioning the accuracy of Hyundai’s representations about the fuel economy of the Elantra. Hyundai Motor America (“Hyundai”) believes this case has no merit, as our advertising is accurate and in full compliance with applicable laws and regulations. In fact, we’ve reviewed our ads and think Consumer Watchdog and their client are dead wrong.

Importantly, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) recently confirmed our advertised fuel economy .... The EPA results, generated from testing conducted on January 25, 2012 at the EPA’s National Vehicle and Fuel Emissions Laboratory in Ann Arbor, Michigan, are identical to the testing data Hyundai originally submitted to the agency. We are gratified with the EPA results, and are committed to continuing to reduce the fuel consumption of our vehicles in order to provide greater value and efficiency for our customers.

Receiving no response from Hyundai to its letters questioning the accuracy of Hyundai’s representations about the fuel economy of the Elantra, Consumer Watchdog sent Hyundai a demand letter on April 23, 2012, pursuant to the Consumer Legal Remedies Act, Cal. Civ. Code §1750 et seq. (“CLRA”).

1 Meanwhile, one of the two firms sponsoring the Proposed Settlement filed
2 Espinosa v. Hyundai Motor America, Case No. 2:12-cv-00800-GW-FFM (C.D.
3 Cal.), a case challenging the fuel economy of the Elantra and Sonata. The Espinosa
4 complaint expressly relied upon Consumer Watchdog’s research and public 5 correspondence. (See Espinosa Complaint at ¶ 27.) Receiving no response to the 6 CLRA demand letter, Consumer Watchdog attorneys filed a class action complaint
7 against Hyundai in California state court on July 3, 2012. Bird v. Hyundai Motor
8 America, Case No. 34-2012-00127249 (Sacramento Superior Court). The Espinosa
9 and Bird cases were litigated in traditional fashion following the applicable civil 10 rules until November 2, 2012.

11 C. The November 2, 2012 Announcement Confirms Hyundai and Kia
12 Inflated MPG; They Initiate the “Voluntary Reimbursement Program.”

13 The course of the litigation changed dramatically on November 2, 2012, 14 when the EPA, Hyundai and Kia jointly announced that the auto manufacturers had 15 in fact overstated the fuel economy of more than a dozen models of vehicles
16 manufactured by Hyundai and Kia between 2010 and 2012 – over 900,000 cars – 17 and that Hyundai and Kia would be adjusting the advertised MPG values of all of 18 these vehicles (hereinafter, “November 2 Announcement”).

19 Simultaneous with the November 2 Announcement, Hyundai and Kia
20 initiated a “Voluntary Reimbursement Program” (hereinafter, “Voluntary 21 Program”). See generally www.hyundaimpginfo.com and www.kiampginfo.com.
22 The Voluntary Program purports to compensate current owners (and lessees) by 23 providing a debit card loaded with funds calculated based upon:

- 24 1. The number of miles the owner has accumulated on the vehicle in question.
- 25 2. The original and revised combined fuel economy ratings of the vehicle in 26 question, in miles per gallon.
- 27 3. The 52-week average fuel price for the area in which the owner lives, based 28 on EIA government data.

1 4. An extra 15 percent above the reimbursement amount as a payment for 2 “inconvenience.”

3 See Hyundai FAQs for Affected Models & Compensation<sup>2</sup> and Kia MPG
4 Information FAQ.<sup>3</sup> In order to receive these payments, owners must periodically
5 visit a Hyundai or Kia dealer to have their mileage verified. Id.

6 D. In the Aftermath of the November 2 Announcement, 54 Lawsuits are 7 Filed; Consumer Watchdog Team Petitions for MDL.

8 The November 2 Announcement spurred an onslaught of similar class action
9 complaints against Hyundai and Kia in federal courts across the United States.
10 Among them was Hunter v. Hyundai Motor America, Case No. 8:12-cv-01909-
11 JVS-JPR (C.D. Cal.), brought by the other plaintiffs’ firm sponsoring the Proposed 12 Settlement. Filed on the same day as the November 2 announcement, the Hunter 13 complaint also relies on Consumer Watchdog’s inquiries to Hyundai, EPA and the 14 White House. (See Hunter Complaint at ¶ 49.)

15 Consumer Watchdog attorneys and associated counsel filed the Krauth case
16 before this Court on November 6, 2012. On November 19, 2012, Consumer 17 Watchdog attorneys petitioned the MDL Panel to consolidate all cases to the 18 United States District Court for the Central District of California, Southern 19 Division. By transfer order dated February 5, 2013, the cases were ordered 20 consolidated before this Court.

21 E. A “Settlement” Is Announced on February 14, 2013.

22 Prior to the first MDL status conference before this Court, counsel in Krauth
23 filed a proposed agenda requesting a briefing schedule for plaintiffs’ leadership
24 structure, a consolidated amended complaint, and discovery. However, at the first 25 status conference, on February 14, 2013, two of the 60 firms representing named
26 plaintiffs in this MDL – Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP and McCune Wright 27

28 <sup>2</sup> Available at <https://hyundaimpginfo.com/faq#compensation>.

1 LLP (hereinafter, “Settling Plaintiffs”; together with Defendants, “Settling
2 Parties”) – informed the Court that they had negotiated a global settlement of the 3 litigation with Hyundai that would bind all affected consumers. Other than those 4 two firms, no other lawyers representing aggrieved plaintiffs participated in the 5 negotiations, which commenced just twelve days after the November 2 EPA
6 announcements. (Carey Decl., ¶ 10). As the Court noted at the first MDL hearing, 7 “it is slightly unusual [for] the settlement [to] have gone this far at the very 8 beginning of the MDL.” (See May 30, 2014 Decl. of Harvey Rosenfield
9 (“Rosenfield Decl.”), Ex. A Transcript of Feb. 14, 2013 hearing at Pages 11:22-10 12:6.)<sup>4</sup>

11 Notwithstanding the Settling Parties’ announcement that a settlement had 12 been reached, it was not until December 23, 2013 (more than ten months later) that 13 Settling Plaintiffs finally filed the Proposed Settlement as part of the instant motion 14 for preliminary approval.

15 F. Confirmatory, Rather than Traditional, Discovery Ensued Without the 16 Full Protection of the Federal Rules and Rule 23(g) Leadership
17 Motions.

18 Based on the representations made by the Settling Parties to this Court in 19 February, 2013, that a settlement had been reached, the traditional procedures 20 applicable to the litigation of class actions were held in abeyance.

21 First, the Rule 23(g) leadership process was not invoked. As a practical 22 matter, however, the two firms representing the Settling Plaintiffs were accorded 23 the privileges of lead counsel. Hyundai and Kia refused to communicate directly 24 with the Consumer Watchdog team of attorneys and others representing Non-

25 <sup>4</sup> One factor in determining the fairness, adequacy and reasonableness of proposed 26 settlements reached prior to certification is whether “defendants appear to have 27 selected, without court involvement, a negotiator from among a number of 28 plaintiffs’ counsel[.]” Federal Judicial Center, Manual for Complex Litigation, § 21.62 at 317 (4th ed. 2004). That is precisely what Hyundai and Kia appear to have done here.

1 Settling Plaintiffs. Liaison Counsel (Eric Gibbs of Girard Gibbs LLP) was 2 appointed by the Court to act as an intermediary. (The Liaison Counsel now
3 supports the Proposed Settlement.)

4 Second, repeated requests by Non-Settling Plaintiffs for formal discovery
5 were denied in favor of “confirmatory discovery.” (See, e.g., Rosenfield Decl., Ex.
6 B (February 28, 2013 Hearing Transcript at Pages 15-16).) Hyundai and Kia
7 refused to proceed with discovery according to federal discovery rules. Instead, 8 Hyundai and Kia unilaterally dictated which witnesses they would produce for 9 “interviews” – not depositions – and the duration and subject matter of those 10 interviews. (See Rosenfield Decl., Ex. C (April 25, 2013 Hearing Transcript at 11 Pages 41-42).) Non-Settling Plaintiffs requested formal depositions pursuant to the 12 Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and to postpone such depositions until after the 13 completion of the limited confirmatory discovery permitted; however, the 14 interviews continued without the benefit of complete discovery.<sup>5</sup>

15 Hyundai and Kia steadfastly refused to produce proper privilege logs under 16 the Federal Rules; instead they unilaterally elected to produce limited privilege
17 logs only for the electronic discovery of their handpicked interviewees. Following 18 a motion to compel, Hyundai begrudgingly revised its privilege log, but many 19 questions went unanswered.<sup>6</sup>

[REDACTED]

22 This highly restrictive process is particularly troubling because when the 23 Court ordered Defendants to provide Non-Settling Plaintiffs with all discovery that

25 <sup>5</sup> Consumer Watchdog attorneys and other counsel for Non-Settling Plaintiffs were 26 permitted to participate in the interviews.

27 <sup>6</sup> Two discovery disputes, including the dispute regarding Hyundai’s privilege log, 28 remain outstanding, as the Court has not yet issued final rulings on these issues.
(See Civil Minutes, Dec. 9, 2013, Dkt. 182; Civil Minutes, Jan. 10, 2014, Dkt.

1 had been provided Settling Plaintiffs, it became apparent that the Settling Plaintiffs 2 had not themselves obtained much, if any, substantive discovery prior to 3 announcing their “settlement” on February 14, 2103.<sup>7</sup>

4 G. What the Limited Discovery Shows About Hyundai and Kia’s
5 Misrepresentation of Their Vehicles’ Fuel Economy.

6 Preliminarily, it is important to note that the MPG values that appear on 7 vehicle MPG stickers (referred to as “Monroney Labels”) and in advertising are 8 based on testing conducted by vehicle manufacturers pursuant to rigorous 9 specifications promulgated by the EPA; the EPA itself does not test the vehicles
10 (but does perform occasional audits of vehicles to confirm MPG accuracy).<sup>8</sup>

19 One major ad campaign – “4x40” – touted
20 four Hyundai vehicles (Elantra, Sonata Hybrid, Accent, Veloster) that Hyundai 21 claimed would achieve 40 mile per gallon highway fuel economy.

22 The discovery is equally clear that Hyundai and Kia officials were aware of 23 the discrepancies, but failed to take any action. [REDACTED]

Despite this and other similar communications

[REDACTED], Hyundai and Kia blamed the overstatements on "honest procedural errors." (See Rosenfield Decl., Ex. D (Excerpt of Transcript of Hyundai-Kia MPG Rating Adjustment Teleconference).) Given the severe limitations on discovery summarized above, we do not have even close to a complete picture of the degree of corporate involvement in the testing process, nor of all the actions that were taken once the errors were exposed.

H. The December 2013 Settlement Motion and Amendments

The Settling Parties finally filed their Motion and accompanying exhibits on December 23, 2013. In response to a request by the Court that all Non-Settling Plaintiffs provide their position on the Proposed Settlement, the Consumer Watchdog team submitted a 14 page single-space summary of flaws and defects in the proposal on behalf of the Krauth and Hasper Plaintiffs. (See Rosenfield Decl., Ex. E.) Other Non-Settling Plaintiffs provided their views, which were summarized by Liaison Counsel in a filing on January 30, 2014. (Dkt. 211.)

Subsequently, with this Court’s encouragement, Liaison Counsel and the Settling Parties entered into negotiations to alter the proposal to address the criticisms. (Neither the Consumer Watchdog team’s lawyers, nor those representing any other Non-Settling Plaintiffs, participated in those negotiations – at least to our knowledge). As a result, the Proposed Settlement has been amended twice. The amendments to the Proposed Settlement essentially make two changes: the form of the notice, and the opportunity for electronic claim submission. Now, Hyundai and Kia will send a postcard instead of a claim form to Class members by mail.

Under the Proposed Settlement, Class Members<sup>9</sup> can choose to register for, or remain in, the Voluntary Program, receive one or more non-transferable “Cash

<sup>9</sup> According to the Proposed Settlement, only consumers who purchased or leased their vehicle on or before November 2, 2012 may seek compensation. (Proposed Settlement, § 1.4.) This arbitrary time limitation precludes otherwise valid claims from consumers who purchased vehicles after November 2, 2012 based on incorrect Monroney Labels that had not been replaced by the dealers following the EPA announcement. For example, Laura Gill, one of the named plaintiffs in Hasper, purchased her vehicle on November 3, 2012 based on inaccurate Monroney Labels that had not been replaced by the dealer following the November

 14 III. THE PROPOSED SETTLEMENT IS UNFAIR, INADEQUATE AND 15 UNREASONABLE.

16 Courts are increasingly sensitive to protecting the rights of absent class 17 members, to whom the court owes a duty to carefully scrutinize proposed 18 settlements to ensure that they are “fundamentally fair, adequate, and reasonable.”
 19 Fed. R. of Civ. P. 23(e). “It is the settlement taken as a whole, rather than the 20 individual component parts, that must be examined for overall fairness.” Hanlon v.

 22 Boeing Co., 327 F.3d 938, 952 (9th Cir. 2003).

23 A particularly high level of scrutiny is necessary here: “[S]ettlement
 24 approval that takes place prior to formal class certification requires a higher
 25 standard of fairness.” Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp., supra, 1026. “[A] district court

 4 Liability Litigation (Bluetooth), 654 F.3d 935, 946 quoting Staton (“court’s role is 5 to police the ‘inherent tensions among class representation, defendant’s interests in 6 minimizing the cost of the total settlement package, and class counsel’s interest in 7 fees”).

8 When the Proposed Settlement is taken as a whole, the number of “red 9 flags” renders it unfair, unreasonable and inadequate under the Federal Rules of 10 Civil Procedure, case law and the best practices for class action settlements as 11 promulgated by recognized authorities (NCLC, Consumer Class Actions (8th ed.
 12 2013) (hereinafter, “NCLC Guide”); NACA, Standards and Guidelines for

19 A. The Settlement Should Not Be Approved Because Hyundai and Kia
 20 Retain Unclaimed and Expired Funds.

21 The serious flaws in the proposed notice, claims and administration
 22 procedures, discussed below, must be viewed in the context of the most deleterious
 23 aspect of the Proposed Settlement: Hyundai and Kia get to keep any funds not 24 claimed by the class. (See Proposed Settlement, §§ 4.3, 3.2.4.) The proposed notice
 25 and claims process virtually guarantee that most Class Members will receive no
 26 compensation at the same time they are being required to release their rights

27 _____
 28 <sup>11</sup> Excerpts of these best practice guides are attached as Exs. F, G and H to Rosenfield Decl.

1 against Hyundai and Kia. As the NACA Guidelines explain at 248: “The amount
2 of such reverting funds is likely to be higher where claim forms are required before 3 class members receive their distribution.”

4 Moreover, the compensation to Class Members is to be provided in the form 5 of debit cards, which expire within one to three years of issue, depending on the 6 form of compensation the Class Member elects to receive. (Proposed Settlement, 7 §§ 3.21, 3.22, 3.23.) According to the Proposed Settlement, the compensation on 8 the debit cards “shall remain the property of [Defendants], unless and until it is 9 expended by the Settlement Class Member” and, upon the expiration date, “any 10 unexpended funds shall become the permanent property of” Defendants. (Proposed 11 Settlement, § 3.2.4.) It is clear these unused funds will not be used for the benefit 12 of the Class.

13 Hyundai and Kia – admitted wrongdoers here – should not be permitted to 14 structure a class action settlement so that they retain any of the compensation they 15 ostensibly have agreed to pay the class. This is particularly true where, as here, the 16 basis for the class action lawsuit is a consumer protection statute whose objectives
17 include deterrence as well as disgorgement. In such cases, “it would contradict 18 these goals to permit the defendant to retain unclaimed funds.” Six (6) Mexican 19 Workers v. Ariz. Citrus Growers, 904 F.2d 1301, 1308 (9th Cir. 1990).
20 “[R]everision is not appropriate where deterrence is a statutory goal and is not 21 otherwise required by the circumstances.” Harris v. Vector Mktg. Corp., 2011 U.S.
22 Dist. LEXIS 48878 at 37-38.

23 Precisely for these reasons, courts disfavor settlements like the instant
24 proposal that permit the defendant to retain unclaimed funds. “A reversion clause
25 creates perverse incentives for a defendant to impose restrictive eligibility
26 conditions and for class counsel and defendants to use the artificially inflated 27 settlement amount as a basis for attorney fees.” Guide for Judges at 20. See also 28 Bluetooth, 654 F.3d 935, 947 (9th Cir. 2011); Fraley v. Facebook, Inc., C 11-1726

1 RS, 2012 WL 5838198 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 17, 2012); Tarlecki v. Bebe Stores, Inc.
2 2009 WL 1364340.

3 In Kakani v. Oracle Corp. 2007 WL 179377 (N.D. Cal.), the district court
4 denied preliminary approval of a claims-made, reversionary settlement, finding it 5 unfair because “such a scheme would be a bonanza for the [defendant] company ...
6 plaintiffs’ counsel ... [and] the named representatives[,]” while “the main losers”
7 were “those absent class members who wind up not submitting a timely claim 8 and/or who never receive a notice letter in the first place.” Id. at *5.

9 Like the settlement in Kakani, the Proposed Settlement does not create a 10 common fund. Instead, Hyundai and Kia retain unclaimed and expired amounts to 11 which Defendants concede Class Members are entitled. (See Proposed Settlement, 12 § 3.2.4); see also Dennis v. Kellogg Co., 697 F.3d 858, 866 (9th Cir. 2011) 13 (reversing preliminary approval of settlement as abuse of discretion where 14 defendant established “constructive common fund,” balance of unclaimed funds 15 was to be distributed through cy pres in the form of food); Bluetooth, 654 F.3d at 16 943 (discussing constructive common fund analysis).

17 The Court should reject Hyundai and Kia’s attempt to evade full 18 accountability to the class as a whole for the economic injuries they incurred as a 19 result of the two companies’ MPG misrepresentations. All Class Members should 20 be compensated pursuant to the Proposed Settlement, and Hyundai and Kia should 21 not be allowed to keep their ill-gotten gains. Unclaimed or expired funds should be 22 distributed pro rata to Class Members, with cy pres to take place once it is no
23 longer economically feasible to distribute further funds to Class Members.

24 B. Hyundai and Kia Should Not Be Permitted to Administer the 25 Settlement.

26 “Where the settlement provides that each qualifying class member receive a 27 specified payment, either a flat sum or an amount to be determined by a formula,
28 settling defendants may have an interest in maximizing the extent to which class

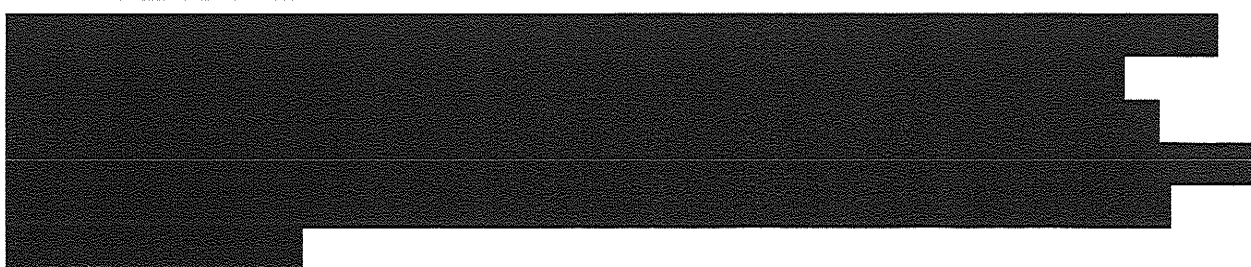

1 members are disqualified or have their claims reduced.” Federal Judicial Center, 2 Manual for Complex Litigation (“MCL 4th”), § 21.66 at 331 (4th ed. 2004). That 3 is why, when reviewing settlements reached before a decision on class
4 certification, the “court should determine whether the persons chosen to administer
5 the procedure are disinterested and free from conflicts arising from representing 6 individual claimants.” Id., § 21.612 at 315.

7 Under the Proposed Settlement, however, Hyundai and Kia are permitted to 8 administer the claims process. They will send notice to class members, attempt to 9 locate class members no longer at their original address, provide claim forms via a 10 website, operate toll-free help lines, review, approve and pay claims and oversee 11 appeals processes for denied claims. (Proposed Settlement, § 4.1, 11.1, 4.3; Second 12 Addendum, §§ 2.1-2.8.)

13 This is particularly improper given the specific facts of this case: Hyundai 14 and Kia misled the EPA and consumers about the fuel economy of their vehicles.
15 The fruits of that wrongdoing were an unspecified financial windfall for Hyundai
16 and Kia, at the expense of their customers, their competitors, and more generally 17 the environment.<sup>12</sup> The Defendants have little incentive to administer the 18 settlement in a scrupulously proper and transparent manner. To the contrary, they 19 have an obvious pecuniary interest in discouraging Class Members from 20 participating in the Proposed Settlement – an interest that is reflected in the severe 21 deficiencies in the notice and claims procedures.

22 Moreover, the Proposed Settlement permits the Defendants to evade any 23 accountability for their conduct in administering the claims process. It provides

26
27
28

1 that Hyundai and Kia will report claims rate data only to Settling Plaintiffs’
2 counsel, and only at the latter’s request. (Second Addendum, § 2.6.) This conflict
3 of interest cannot be remediated; it undermines the interests of Class Members.

4 C. The Claims Process is Unnecessary.

5 Given that the Defendants here have conceded liability and are readily able 6 to distribute compensation to Class Members directly, requiring Class Members to 7 request the compensation to which they are entitled under the Proposed settlement
8 is unfair and unreasonable. See Alba Conte & Herbert Newberg, Newberg on Class
9 Actions § 8:35, at 272 n.3 (4th ed. 2002) (“Whenever there is an option available
10 to distribute fairly a class recovery without requiring a proof of claim by class 11 members as a precondition to sharing in that recovery, the automatic distribution of 12 the class recovery to eligible class members is the preferable option and is more 13 consistent with the objectives of the class action rule.”). In assessing fairness, 14 courts must “consider whether a claims process is necessary at all.” Guide for 15 Judges at 30. The NACA Guidelines advise, “[I]n ‘opt-out’ class actions, claims
16 forms should be avoided[.]” NACA Guidelines at 263. This is because “claims 17 made” settlements result in reduced compensation to the class as a whole, while 18 releasing their rights: “Class claim forms and procedures can reduce the number of 19 class members who receive recovery and the amount paid by the defendants. ...
20 [yet] [c]lass members who fail to act by returning a claim form may be bound by a 21 general release of claims and defenses.” NCLC Guide at 211, quoting NACA
22 Guidelines at 263. “Claim forms may be necessary only (i) when class members
23 cannot be adequately identified from the defendant’s records; or (ii) when class 24 members must provide information to establish eligibility for relief or to ascertain 25 the scope of the damages and the information is not available in the defendant’s 26 records or otherwise available from third parties.” NCLC Guide at 211.

27 Defendants all too often insist on a claims-made settlement as a deliberate 28 strategy to minimize having to pay what they owe the class because they know that

1 many class members will not take the time to complete and submit a claim form.
2 As the FJC Notice Guide explains: “In too many cases, the parties may negotiate a 3 claims process which serves as a choke on the total amount paid to class members.”
4 FJC Notice Guide at 6. This risk becomes most serious when – as here – the 5 Settling Parties not only structure the settlement as a claims-made settlement, but 6 they add layer upon layer of complexity and steps to the process that harmed
7 consumers must follow.

8 No claim form is necessary here. As automobile manufacturers, Hyundai
9 and Kia are particularly capable of sending Class Members their compensation
10 automatically. Defendants have contact information for all new and used car 11 purchasers and lessees made through their dealers, as well for those obtaining 12 maintenance and repair services. Moreover, Defendants possess updated records of 13 valid postal and email addresses for the [REDACTED]
14 [REDACTED]<sup>13</sup> Additionally,
15 Hyundai and Kia have agreed to utilize “an available R.L. Polk (or a similar 16 database)” if necessary to obtain other Class Members’ contact information.
17 (Proposed Settlement, §§ 4.1, 11.1; Second Addendum, § 1.1.)

18 Using the contact information they possess, Hyundai and Kia can simply 19 send Class Members a cash payment for the lump sum (if current, original or non-20 original owners or lessees) or Voluntary Program amounts (if former owners or 21 lessees) they are entitled to, as the default option. The class notice (discussed infra)
22 can inform Class Members that they will automatically receive cash compensation
23 unless they state a preference for one of the other options, in which case a simple 24

25 <sup>13</sup> [REDACTED]
26 [REDACTED]
27 [REDACTED]

28 Hyundai and Kia have valid postal address and email addresses for all of these consumers.

1 claim form would suffice.

2 The Settling Parties offer no evidence that a claim form is required under the 3 present circumstances – Defendants have accurate data at their disposal and 4 uniform misstatements and damages to Class Members. That Class Members are 5 offered various compensation options under the Proposed Settlement (cash
6 compensation, enrollment in the Voluntary Program, “4x40” payment, a Dealer
7 Service Debit Card, or a New Car Rebate Card) does not justify the use of a claim 8 form.

9 Similarly, the Settling Parties offer no justification for requiring class 10 members who are entitled to the special “4x40” payment to clear an additional 11 hurdle in order to receive the additional compensation. Those Class Members must 12 separately elect to receive the “4x40” payment during the online claims process or 13 on the paper claim form. (See Proposed Settlement, § 3.1.8; First Addendum.)<sup>14</sup>

14 D. The Class Notice is Inadequate.

15 Under Fed. R. of Civ. Pro. 23(c)(2)(B), class members must receive “the 16 best notice that is practicable under the circumstances.” To satisfy due process, the 17 notice must reflect a “desire to actually inform.” Guide for Judges at 27-28, citing 18 Mullane v. Cent. Hanover Bank & Trust Co., 339 U.S. 306, 315 (1950). A class 19 action settlement notice “is satisfactory if it generally describes the terms of the 20 settlement in sufficient detail to alert those with adverse viewpoints to investigate 21 and to come forward and be heard.” Rodriguez v. W. Pub. Corp., 563 F.3d 948, 22 962 (9th Cir.2009) (quoting Churchill Vill., LLC v. Gen. Elec., 361 F.3d 566, 575
23 (9th Cir.2004). The “notice must clearly and concisely state in plain, easily 24 understood language” details of the settlement. Fed. R. of Civ. Pro. 23(c)(2)(B).

25
26
27 <sup>14</sup> Nor have the Settling Plaintiffs presented any reason for restricting the 4x40
28 relief to those Class Members who register for, or opt to remain in, the Reimbursement Program.

1 When a settlement imposes a claims requirement, as this one does, the class
2 notice plays an additional, extremely important role: it is the first step in the claims 3 process.

4 Initially, the Settling Parties proposed to notify the class by sending a 13-
5 page letter (and five-page claim form) to Class Members via First Class mail, 6 supplemented by a four-sentence flyer available at Hyundai and Kia dealers (the 7 “Dealer Flyer”). (Proposed Settlement §§ 4.1, 6.2, 11.1, Exs. D, E, G.) After 8 criticisms by the Consumer Watchdog legal team and lawyers for other Non-9 Settling Plaintiffs, Settling Parties amended the notice and claims process. (See 10 Liaison Counsel’s Report Listing Non-Settling Plaintiffs’ Cases and Positions
11 Regarding Proposed Settlement, Jan. 30, 2014, Dkt. 211; First Addendum; Second
12 Addendum.)

13 Now, to obtain any form of compensation under the newly amended terms of 14 the Proposed Settlement, a Class Member must first grasp the significance and 15 details of the contents of a four by six inch postcard.

16 The proposed class notice does not meet the requirements of Fed. R. of Civ.
17 Pro. 23(c)(2)(B) for the following reasons:

- 18 • The Postcard is visually illegible. The Settling Parties submitted the text of 19 the Postcard Notice to the Court, but not the actual document itself. (See 20 Second Addendum, Ex. A.) This is improper. FJC Notice Guide at 2 (“Draft 21 forms of the notices should be developed, in the shape, size, and form in 22 which they will actually be disseminated ... before authorizing notice to the 23 class”). Scaled to actual postcard size, the Postcard is nearly unreadable.
(See Rosenfield Decl., Ex. I (scaled Postcard Notice).) The estimated 9.5-24 point font is too small to deliver information about how to learn more about the settlement in any effective manner.
- 25 • The Postcard text is inadequate. Notice should “prominently explain to 26 class members both the benefits of returning claims forms and the 27 consequences of not returning them.” NACA Guidelines at 264. It should be “in an attention getting and understandable format.” Guide for Judges at 28.
28 None of the text on the Postcard Notice – including the critical information about how to file a claim – is in bold or “prominently” stands out in any

1 way. There is room – white space – on the address side of the postcard to 2 flag its importance with a teaser, but the proposal does not take advantage of 3 that opportunity. Moreover, the text is poorly drafted and replete with legalese.

- 4 • The Postcard Notice is not appropriate in the context of the Proposed Settlement. Under the circumstances here, where the Class Notice serves 5 not only to notify a Class Member of the litigation, but also is the principal
6 method of communicating claims and compensation information, postcard 7 notice cannot as a practical matter properly inform class members of the 8 steps they need to take to obtain compensation.
- 9 • The Dealer Flyer is inadequate. The Dealer Flyer, which is written in vague and confusing language, is unlikely to ever reach Class Members.
10 (See Rosenfield Decl., Ex. E; Proposed Settlement, §§ 6.1, 6.2).
- 11 • The proposed notices fail to disclose to Class Members the amount of 12 fees that the attorneys for Settling Plaintiffs will receive. Such information must be presented to class members within the class notice. See 13 NACA Guidelines at 261.
- 14 • The Proposed Settlement does not utilize email notice. A notice sent via 15 email is appropriate when class members are likely to have access to email.
16 See Lane v. Facebook, Inc., 696 F.3d 811, 818 (9th Cir. 2012) (approving 17 notice when the principal method was to send an email to the class members and included a notice of the settlement in the “Updates” section of members’ 18 personal Facebook accounts); NACA Guideline at 261 (“there is rarely a reason why ... email ... should not ... be undertaken and utilized in addition 19 to the traditional forms” of notice).

20 See fn. 14, supra.<sup>15</sup>

22 <sup>15</sup> Defendants utilized email communication for the Voluntary Program. Indeed, 23 the Class Notice proposed here is not nearly as extensive as the notice of 24 compensation through the Voluntary Program, where consumers received emails, 25 direct mail notice, public announcements from Hyundai and Kia and 26 communications from dealers and the media announcing the Voluntary Program.
Ironically, Settling Plaintiffs “filed their class action lawsuit to rectify deficiencies 27 in the [Voluntary] Program.” (Mot. for Class Cert. at 2:24-25.) But in terms of 28 notice, the Proposed Settlement is deficient by comparison. Courts have rejected notice programs where, like here, a company has initiated its own voluntary program to refund consumers for a faulty product and the voluntary program provides for more extensive notice than the class action settlement. Webb v.

- The Settling Parties Have Failed to Provide the Long Form Notice. It is impossible to fully assess the adequacy of notice to the class without the Long Form Notice. The Settling Parties have not submitted the Long Form Notice to the Court or Non-Settling Plaintiffs. This information must be submitted prior to the hearing on preliminary approval.<sup>16</sup>

E. The Claims Process is Onerous, Convolted and Will Discourage Class Members from Obtaining Compensation.

“Class counsel should do everything possible to minimize the class members’ burden in completing and returning claims forms,” according to the NACA Guidelines at 264. The Guide for Judges states, “avoid imposing unnecessary hurdles on potential claimants[.]” Id. at 30; accord FJC Notice Guide at 6 (the claims process should avoid “onerous features that reduce claims by making claiming more inconvenient”). Additionally, opting out should be as convenient as remaining a part of the class. “There should be no unnecessary hurdles that make it difficult for class members to exercise their rights to opt out, object, submit a claim, or make an appearance.” FJC Notice Guide at 1. When a claim form is necessary, it should be as simple as possible. See Walter v. Hughes Commc'ns, Inc., 2011 WL 2650711 at *14-15 (N.D. Cal. July 6, 2011) (rejecting proposed claim form as too complicated and too vague); Guide for Judges at 30.

As presently structured, the Postcard informs Class Members that there are two methods of filing a claim for compensation: online, and through an online/mail hybrid. The proposed claims process is onerous and convoluted:

- To file a claim online, the Class Member must jump through several hoops: (1) go to the online claims website, (2) review the Long Form Notice,

Carter's Inc., 272 F.R.D. 489, 504 (C.D. Cal. 2011); In re Phenylpropanolamine (PPA) Prods. Liab. Litig., 214 F.R.D. 614, 622 (W.D.Wash. 2003); In re ConAgra Peanut Butter Prods. Liab. Litig., 251 F.R.D. 689, 700–01 (N.D.Ga. 2008).

<sup>16</sup> To the extent that the Settling Parties propose to adopt a printed notice (and claim form) similar to the one included in their original motion, we urge the Court to reject the printed notice for the reasons discussed in the analysis submitted by the Consumer Watchdog on January 22, 2014, attached as Ex. E to the Rosenfield Decl.

1 (3) verify that he or she is a class member by inputting both his or her full 2 VIN number and Unique ID listed on the Postcard Notice, (4) fill out and 3 submit the online claim form, (5) print the confirmation page after 4 submission of the claim form, (6) “attach proof of [class members’] current 5 address, such as a utility bill[,]” and, if the class member is a former owner 6 or lessee, documentation showing the mileage when the class member
 7 bought and sold the vehicle, and (7) “mail, fax or email” the document
 8 packet to Hyundai or Kia. (Second Addendum, Ex. B.)<sup>17</sup>

- 9 • There is no reason to require class members to print out and mail their 10 online claim submission. Hyundai and Kia should process online claims as 11 long as they are submitted with an electronic signature. See FJC Notice
 12 Guide at 6 (“Technology allows ... an electronic signature”). It is far too
 13 burdensome to require a consumer to take additional steps beyond 14 submitting the online claim form to obtain compensation.
- 15 • The online claim form makes it burdensome for Class Members to opt 16 out. Class Members must (1) go to the online claims website, (2) download 17 the Long Form Notice, which as of the date of this brief has not been 18 presented by the Settling Parties but presumably will contain instructions on 19 how to request exclusion, and (3) additionally, mail Settling Plaintiffs’
 20 counsel the request to opt out. (Proposed Settlement, § 11.5; Second 21 Addendum, ¶ 1.11.) A Class Members should not be required to jump 22 through such hurdles to opt out.
- 23 • The online claim form does not clearly explain the consequences of not 24 filing a claim form. (See Second Addendum, Ex. A.) The NACA
 25 Guidelines at 264 state that “[i]n opt-out class action settlements, if claims 26 are being released by the settlement, the claim form should explain in plain 27 language the claims that will be released, whether or not the class member 28 submits the claim form, unless the class member opts out of the settlement.”
 The proposed claim form contains no language to this effect.
- Deadlines and phone numbers for questions are not listed on the online claim form. On claim forms, “The deadlines and phone numbers for questions should be prominent.” FJC Notice Guide at 6. The online claim form does not display – let alone prominently – any deadlines for opt out

 FAQ sheet appear in the left margin of the sample claim form website distributed as Ex. B to the Second Addendum, but Settling Parties have not yet submitted these documents to the Court or Non-settling Plaintiffs.

requests or submission of the confirmation page and additional documentation regarding proof of address or proof of mileage, nor phone numbers where Class Members can obtain information.

- The online claim form does not clearly explain compensation options. The online claim form does not clearly inform current, original owners that any amounts they have previously received under the Voluntary Program are deducted from any lump-sum payment received under the Proposed Settlement. Also, the online claim form does not clearly inform current, original “4x40” owners and lessees that they are not entitled to a “4x40” payment if they elect the lump sum option instead of remaining in, or registering for, the Voluntary Program. Nor does the online form clearly inform former owners and lessees that they are only entitled to the compensation that they would have received under the Voluntary Program, and that they are not entitled to the lump-sum payment option.
- The proposed mail-based claims process is needlessly onerous and convoluted. Class Members who choose not to pursue the online claims process discussed above must call an 800 number operated by Hyundai and Kia to obtain a printed claim form by mail. (See Proposed Settlement, § 4.1, 4.2; Second Addendum, § 1.2, Ex. A.) See fn. 17, supra.
- Settling Plaintiffs provide no estimates on how many Class Members are eligible for the lump sum and “4x40” payments; nor do they provide any estimates on what percentages of those eligible Class Members will claim the lump-sum or “4x40” payments.

IV. CONCLUSION AND RECOMMENDATIONS

The Court should deny the Motion for Preliminary Approval on the grounds stated above unless the following changes are made:

1. Class Members should receive the cash compensation to which they are entitled automatically, unless they request one of the other forms of compensation (i.e., dealer service or new car discount).
2. Unclaimed or unexpired funds should be distributed pro rata to Class Members and for there to be cy pres distribution when it becomes uneconomical to make further pro rata distributions to the Class Members.
3. An independent and neutral third party should be appointed to administer the settlement.

- 4. Class notice must be in the form of a letter – not a postcard – that is revised to contain clear and prominent information, including the proposed attorneys fees.<sup>18</sup>
- 5. The Settling Parties must submit the Long Form Notice for review and approval by the Court; it should be revised to contain clear, prominent and required information.
- 6. Reporting and Transparency: (A) Hyundai and Kia should be required to file quarterly public reports with the Court documenting the number and amount of claims, both successful and rejected, for each of the three groups of class members, as well as the claims rate, until the date on which all claims have been processed; and (B) All fee distributions to or by the attorneys for Settling Plaintiffs, direct or indirect, should be filed with the Court and made public.

On behalf of plaintiffs Krauth and Hasper, the Consumer Watchdog legal team is prepared to work with the Settling Parties, or present directly to the Court, more consumer-friendly versions of documents discussed above.

<sup>18</sup> Alternatively, the Court should consider appointing an independent claims and notice expert to assist the Court in revising the process. See FJC Notice Guide at 1; Kaufman v. Am. Express Travel Related Servs., 283 F.R.D. 404 (N.D. Ill. 2012) (appointing an independent expert to assist the court in developing notice plan that comports with FJC Notice Guide).
